LOCAL BRIEFS.

—See advertisement "For Rent."
—The young people had quite a large social at the residence of Mrs. James Brice on Christmas eve night. They report quite a delightful time.

—Mr. James H. Rion is depot agent at Carlsbad instead of express agent as we previously stated. He is in the employ of the Southern Railway Company.

—William Boulware was committed to jail on Tuesday charged with having entered Mr. Rutland's store and stolen goods. The evidence against Boulware is principally circumstantial.

—As will be seen by our advertising column, the firm of T. F. Davis & Co. has been dissolved, and they are succeeded by Mr. J. J. Obeart. Mr. Obeart is an expert and experienced druggist, and he will appreciate a share of the trade.

—The stable building, formerly owned by H. & Crawford has been bought by Mr. H. H. who will open up there a safe, feed and livery stable. Mr. D. A. Crawford has moved into the building opposite the postoffice on East Washington Street, that was formerly occupied by his father.

—A little over three winters wrote a letter to Santa Claus and among other things asked for a doll baby. Her brother, some years older, said to his mother, "Mama, don't let Santa bring baby any more baby dolls, she has so many now she don't know what to do with them." The little girl brightly replied, "Doodness, draculous, boy, she can't help herself." Her faith is beautifully strong.

—Even in the cold business world there are a few business men who feel the better sentiments of Christmas time. A gentleman employed here by a firm in another state has received a letter from his employers in which they say: "We take this opportunity of sending to you and all our agents a cordial expression of our good will, with the hope that, recognizing the vital significance of the day we celebrate, may also rejoice and be happy."

—Christmas was very quietly spent in Winnsboro. It was a cold, freezing, rainy day, and most of the people stayed at home with their families, and enjoyed the day in rest. The children, of course, were as happy as they could be with their Christmas gifts. Christmas is for children, and they usually take possession of the day. On the streets, there were few people. After all, the most pleasant way for grown people to spend Christmas is to make it a kind of Sunday—a day of rest from toil and trouble—and that's the way it was spent in Winnsboro this year. No disorder on the streets, the stores and other business places closed, it was a day of peace and good will.

—Heb on human, mange on horses, dogs and all stock, cured in 30 minutes by Woolf's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails, sold by W. E. Aiken, druggist, Winnsboro, S. C.

A True Story.

A gentleman of our county was seen on the street a few days ago carrying a crouching sack. When accosted by some friends and asked what were the contents of his peculiar looking bundle, he replied: "Shut your mouth and let me alone. I owe a note in the bank and have to sell this old hen to help pay it." His cotton must have sold for more than five cents.

JEFFERSON TOWNSHIP ORGANIZE.

Pursuant to a call a number of the farmers of Jefferson Township assembled at Monticello for the purpose of organizing a cotton growers club. A. E. Davis was elected president and S. G. McMillan secretary. The following gentlemen were appointed as a committee to report the most expedient method of accomplishing the purpose of the organization: W. J. Martin, E. R. Roberts, F. R. McMeekin and C. T. McGilli. Secretary.

"Oaklawn,"

Pineville, North Carolina.

Miss Harris has many friends on Winnsboro, having visited her sister, Mrs. C. E. McDonald, quite often.

A POSSIBLY FATAL FAMILY FEUD.

J. A. Glover was put in jail on Friday as the result of a fight that happened on Thursday. We cannot give the minute details of the trouble, but two occurrences of this kind there are two sides, and conflicting statements at the time of the fight. Willard and his son Elias were the two who fought. Glover, who is a brother of Elias, is a younger. They were both armed with knives which were used in the fight. Glover was the victor, and he was released from jail on Saturday.

OUR CARRIER'S ADDRESS.

Ross Brown has been the carrier of the Tri-Weekly News and Herald during the past year. His Christmas address was written by a lady in town, and we think that it is unusually good. We reproduce it below:

While the lazy boys are sleeping,
And all the shutters down,
In and out, and out and in,
I'm all around the town;
Scolding through the summer rain,
Plodding through the street,
Any day and every day,
The Carrier boy you'll meet.
When your breakfast coffee's hot,
The paper's at your plate,
Always brimming full of news,
And always up to date.
When you take your hat and cane,
To saunter down the street,
You never are the least surprised,
No matter who you meet.

DEATH OF MRS. THOS. M. LYLES.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Thomas M. Lyles, who died on Saturday night after a short illness. Mrs. Lyles was the youngest daughter of Col. Austin F. Peay, who represented Fairfield County for many years in the State Senate. She was three or four years younger than her venerable husband, who is now about 87 years of age. Of her father's family there were Martha Black, Sarah Myers, Nicholas A. Peay, who was also Senator from Fairfield County and the wealthiest planter of the county when he died just before the war, Mary Politz, and last, Eliza, wife of Thos. M. Lyles. It is enough to say that she was unsurpassed as a wife in her affection to her husband and her family, and in her skill as a manager of a large household, and a devoted Christian.

WINNSBORO AS A CATTLE MARKET.

Winnsboro is rapidly becoming a very prominent cattle market. About 1000 head of cattle are now on the market. Most of them came from the county, though a great many are brought from Newberry, Union, York, Chester and Lancaster. This is an encouraging sign. It is said to be a profitable business. Those farmers who have more land than they can cultivate would do well to use the surplus for pasturing cattle. We heard a gentleman suggest a short time ago, that the farmer who would start with a good many cattle and plant an acre of cotton for each cow kept would in a few years have a most successful cotton farm, to say nothing of his stock farm. The cotton would furnish feed for his cattle, enrich his land, and the lint cotton could be regarded as a perquisite. A systematic working of this plan would doubtless prove satisfactory.

NO CURE-NO PAY.

This is the way all druggists sell Groves' TALENTLESS CHILL TONIC for Chills and Malaria. It is simply iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. Children love it. Adults prefer it to bitter nauseating tonics. Price, 50c.

The Mount Lebanon Shakers recently performed a great deed of charity, although it was not designed as a charity, being nothing more nor less than an advertising scheme. It however resulted in great good just the same. They gave away 1,000 bottles of their Digestive Cordial to those suffering from stomach derangements.

It was so effective in curing those who used the remedy that they were loud in their praises of it and in consequence a large demand for the Cordial was at once created.

The druggists of this town have little books that tell about it. Digestive Cordial creates an appetite, aids digestion and brings about a rapid increase in flesh and strength.

A LETTER OF INTEREST.

Mr. D. R. Feaster Writes Confirming the Location of Mobley's Meeting House. Descended from Tories, He Recognizes that they were Conscientious in their Convictions—An Interesting Story about how Wade Hampton, of the Revolution, got Lands in Fairfield.

Mr. Editor: I write this to verify Mr. A. S. Donglass' location of the "Mobley Meeting House." He has given very plainly the location. Many have been the times when I have passed and been at the place while hunting with the late "Dr." "Riah" Wright and "General" J. D. Coleman and others. Has no one a Mills Atlas of South Carolina? It gives the location, as well as the dwellings and roads of all the counties of the State. My father had one I think though think he cut out the map of Fairfield County and gave it to a party of Wheeler's men. My brother, J. C. Feaster, of Buckhead, S. C., has the map. You might learn from him. The bluff or precipice on the east was quite precipitous which rendered it difficult of ascent or descent. Of the particulars of the fight I know very little, but I remember very well that the Mobleys of that day, of whom I am a lineal descendant through my grandmother, Drucilla Mobley, were non-combatants. They were Dunkards, a kind of Quakers, and wore their beards long. I believe it was part of their religious faith or custom to so wear their beard. It was through their peaceful disposition or to their fears that Wade Hampton, on one of his forays against the Loyalists or Tories, obtained all of that valuable tract of land afterwards owned by Dr. David H. Means, known as "Hampton," and the Poplar Ridge and Lyles Field, owned by Dr. Means. They were gathered at their meeting house for worship and he came upon them and charged them with being Tories and that they were assembled for unlawful purposes, but told them if they would give the lands mentioned above that he would not arrest or punish any of them.

My old friend Major T. W. Woodward has asked for testimony from one who knew anything at all from either side. Well, I know very little, as will be seen from what I have written. I am descended from what was then called the Tories through my grandmother Mobley, and I am not at all ashamed to say so here. The Mobleys were among the first settlers of Fairfield and have always held a high position socially and otherwise. In fact they are among Fairfield's best citizens.

A word about Fort Wagoner or Wagner. It was situated on Beaver Creek, and had been in possession of the Feaster family for more than one hundred years, now belonging to the estate of T. D. Feaster, lately deceased. Wagoner was a blood relative of the Mobleys and was a Whig. There was a few years ago some extent of the old fort. It was near that fort that one of the Beams, I believe, killed the rattle-snake that had swallowed a small fawn, so Mills says. I neither deny or affirm.

I am pleased to see the interest being taken in these old historical events. During my nine years sojourn here I have never lost interest in my dear old native State. May God bless her and the many true and tried friends I left there. I have been solicited more than once during your late, heated political canvasses to write what I know about "Tom" Woodward. If the Major, my old friend, does not object, and you would care to publish it, now that the excitement has been somewhat subsided, I will write a short sketch of what I know of that true friend and noble citizen. We have nearly always differed in our opinions, but I hope have never lost our respect for each other.

D. R. Feaster.

ANDREWS ON LEE.

Augusta Chronicle. President Andrews is being roasted in certain papers of the truly loyal type for eulogizing General Robert E. Lee as the distinctively greatest of our military heroes, and incidentally, for the statement that the chief principles fought for by the Confederacy have been engrafted in the constitution. The Mail and Express dissects and says:

What Lee fought for was the right of states to secede from the Union and the perpetuation of human slavery. Certainly those principles have not been incorporated into our laws and constitution. President Andrews may be conceded the right to his private opinions.

General Lee fought for the right of local self-government, and supreme court decisions, since the war, have confirmed it. The right of secession and perpetuation of negro slavery were incidents in the main contention. The northern states are very jealous of the right of sovereignty, and may have to fight for it, later on. The mere existence of chattel slavery has vanished, but servitude has not been abolished. It is the white man's time to fight for a struggle for freedom. The lash of the master has been substituted for that of the plantation boss.

Mr. Wallace was highly esteemed in the community. He leaves a wife and five children.
